BOUNDARY QUIZ

Have you ever...

- given someone you support a hug?
- bought a coffee for someone you support?
- purchased a gift for someone you support?
- accepted a gift from someone you support or his/her family?
- gone out for lunch with someone you support?
- invited someone you support home for Christmas dinner?
- socialized with a family member of someone you support?
- shared personal information with someone you support or his or her family?
- visited with a person receiving support on your day off?
- continued with a personal relationship after the professional relationship has ended?
- told someone you support that you are his or her friend?
- disagreed with your employer’s decision about support and discussed this with a family member?
• borrowed something from someone you support?
        Yes  No

• asked for a favour from someone you support?
        Yes  No

• involved your family/friends in the work that you do?
        Yes  No

• brought someone you support to your home for an overnight visit?
        Yes  No

• brought your child to work to meet the people you support?
        Yes  No

• made personal calls from the home of someone you support?
        Yes  No

• watched your favourite television programs at the group home?
        Yes  No

• gone on vacation with someone you support?
        Yes  No

• “friended” someone you support on Facebook?
        Yes  No

Do you see any of these situations as having the potential to be perceived as a boundary crossing or violations?

Does the agency you work for have policies, guidelines or standards that would guide you in these situations? If so, do you know what they mean and what is expected of you.